Topics in Multiethnic Literatures of the United States

Catalog Descriptions:

ENG 3713 Topics in Multiethnic Literatures of the United States: (3-0) 3 hours credit. Prerequisite: Completion of the Core Curriculum requirement in literature. Comparative study of a specific genre or theme in the literatures of various ethnic groups in the United States such as African American, Asian American, Native American, and/or U.S. Latino/a. May be repeated for credit when topics vary.

AMS 3343 Studies in Race and Ethnicity: (3-0) 3 hours credit. The study of historical, social, cultural, and material influences on race and ethnicity. Course will use texts from literature, sociology, history, and other disciplines. May be repeated for credit when topics vary.

WS 4853 Special Topics in Women Writers: (3-0) 3 hours credit. This course examines women’s texts with special attention to understanding gender as a category of analysis. Variable topics may include women in the sciences, women and technology, literary and cultural representations, women and business, historical and political change, questions of class and nation, queer or transgender theories, or medical and health experiences. This class may emphasize the importance of intersecting categories of analysis including gender, race, ethnicity, and sexuality. May be repeated for credit when topics vary. (Formerly WGS 4853.)

Course Description: This course will introduce you to major works by Native American and Chicana writers and examine the role of race in the American experience. Particular attention will be paid to how these writers have manipulated language and literary genres as they construct alternative notions of American identity and write themselves back into history. More importantly, this course will emphasize the importance of the political, cultural and socio-historical context of all readings. We will also critically examine the systematic historical exclusion of writers of color within American literary history and the canon of American literature. Lastly, since this course falls within the realm of Ethnic Studies, we will also take into consideration the most recent legislation in Arizona, (HB2281), that calls for the banning of Ethnic Studies programs. Assignments will be given in conjunction with Ethnics Studies Week (Oct 1-7).

Course Objectives

- Provide students the opportunity to effectively write a thesis driven college level essay including form and content as well as successful integration and documentation of secondary sources
- Provide students the opportunity to develop significant interpretations of a wide variety of literary texts by writers
• Provide students the opportunity to effectively gather information and critically analyze social, political, economic and historical aspects of American Indian and Chicano culture

Required Texts

• Zitkala-Sa — American Indian Stories
• Norma Cantú — Canícula: Snapshots of a Girlhood en la Frontera
• Gloria Anzaldúa — Borderlands/La Frontera
• Helena Viramontes — Under the Feet of Jesus
• Sandra Cisneros — The House on Mango Street
• Electronic Articles: some required readings/articles can be found on Blackboard under E-reserves. I suggest that you maintain a separate binder for this course that includes copies of the readings uploaded to Blackboard.

Course Requirements and Grading Criteria

No late assignments accepted! You will be given a zero for all late assignments. There are also no makeup quizzes or assignments.

Attendance: You are required to attend class regularly and will be graded accordingly. More than three unexcused absences will result in your grade being lowered by 15 points, for each absence thereafter. You are responsible for knowing what was discussed in class. It is your responsibility to ensure that I receive advance notification of excused absences. Please see “UTSA Handbook of Operating Procedures” for a more detailed outline of approved excused absences and the process for proper notification to the instructor.

Reading Responses: (2p) These responses will provide a space where you can critically analyze the readings. The purpose of the responses is to generate group discussion and enable you to begin formulating your thoughts for a longer essay. If you paraphrase and/or quote from the readings, make sure to cite page numbers! Some examples of what you might write for a reading response are: 1) close reading of a passage(s) that discusses the major themes, characters, setting, etc. 2) respond to one or two of the main themes/ideas of the documentary, film, novel, essay, poem, or short story 3) discuss the narrative style and techniques of the writer 3) respond to the article/creative work by relating it to your own lived experience and/or knowledge of the subject matter 4) respond by asking questions and critically engage in dialogue with the main ideas of the texts/films 5) compare creative works/essays/documentaries to other readings and or secondary sources {Note: Remember NOT to simply summarize the readings, but rather engage in critical analysis and commentary!} My criteria for grading reading responses will be based partly but not exclusively on the following:

• Your ability to critically analyze and interpret the readings
• Your ability to properly explicate and evaluate socio-historical essays and creative works
• Your ability to NOT simply summarize the articles/reading, but rather, discuss your own ideas and interpretations of a particular text
• Your ability to write well-thought responses and/or questions that are coherent and illustrate proper use of grammar, mechanics, and style (e.g. basic elements of language use; clear, effective, correct sentence structures, word choice, tone, voice)
Blackboard: We will be using Blackboard frequently throughout this course, so please become familiar with the basic tools (i.e. Discussion Board, Assignments, Announcements, Assessments, Mail, Course Content, Calendar, Weblinks, etc.). The following link has tutorials on various aspects of BB. https://elearning.utsa.edu/Tutorials/BB/Index.aspx

In-Class & Blackboard Discussions: Active participation in class discussions is required. For each class you should be prepared to discuss the material and address the comments/questions of your peers. You should also come to class with at least two prepared questions to address to the class. The issues raised in this class are by no means resolved. It is thus expected that as a class we will often disagree and rarely come to a consensus about the material. This should be seen as positive rather than negative. Your participation on BB and face to face is key to creating a more dynamic class, one that allows us to learn from each other. I expect everyone to be respectful of their fellow peers and come to class with open minds that will allow for constructive debate and discussions about the material presented in class, especially during student presentations. I encourage you to continue your in-class discussions online through Blackboard. In order for me to maintain a record of your participation, I will grade your discussions and prepared questions biweekly based on a combination of your in-class and online participation.

My criteria for grading discussions will be based partly, but not exclusively on the following:

- Your ability to critically analyze another student’s comments and give critical feedback
- Your ability to engage in meaningful and substantial dialogue with your peers that focuses on the readings
- Your ability to bring in examples of lived experience that are relevant to the main topic of discussion
- Your ability to ask questions that engage your peers to think critically about a particular work
- Your ability to introduce new material (e.g. websites, new articles, current events, other journal articles, books, etc.) to the discussion group
- BB discussions grades will be based not only on the number of entries you make, but your interactive participation with peers and relevant responses to their comments/questions; this grade will also be based on how well you critically examine the readings beyond simple summary; these online discussions should not be treated as informal “chats” (please pay close attention to your grammar, mechanics, etc.)

Participation grades will be distributed as follows:

In Class Discussion Grade: A maximum of 10pts points per designated week will be distributed for your participation in large and small group discussions. You are required to come to class with at least two prepared questions and/or substantive comments on the day’s readings. These may be collected during class in order to promote discussion. I will record your participation during every class meeting. (Note: Points may be deducted for non-participation in weekly in-class discussions).

Blackboard Discussion Grade: (2p x 25) A maximum of 10 points per designated week will be distributed for BB discussion. You will be required to submit at least two questions per week covering the readings and you will need to respond/answer at least two of your peers’ questions and respond to at least one student’s response. This will take the form of “dialogue”; similar to an in-class discussion. Thus, you are encouraged to respond back and forth with a peer who has answered one of your questions (and/or has commented on your in-class presentation, etc.).
expect that ALL of these answers and responses to peers be substantial. Please note that you are encouraged to post questions/thoughts/responses after in-class discussion; but “discussion boards” will be locked at the end of each week. (Note: Points may be deducted for non-participation in weekly BB discussions).

Please see the following websites for universal practices of online “netiquette”:
http://www.csustan.edu/Blackboard/Netiquette.html
http://www.netmanners.com/

Final Essay: (10p) Your essay is to be turned in electronically via Blackboard. Your essay will require that you formulate your own original, creative thesis on a reading from class. All papers should be double-spaced and typed in 12-point font with a one-inch margin on all sides. (MLA Style) My criteria for grading your essay will be based partly but not exclusively on the following:

- Your ability to produce a coherent, well thought-out essay that includes secondary sources
- Your ability to produce an original, creative thesis
- Your ability to critically analyze and interpret the assigned articles, creative works and documentaries
- Your ability to do extensive research on a particular writer, novel, topic, etc. by utilizing the library databases; note: all secondary sources must be from peer-reviewed journals and/or books
- Your ability to submit an MLA style paper with proper documentation
  Reference websites for proper MLA style (also refer to latest edition of the MLA Handbook): http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/557/01/
- Coherence: thesis clarity and creativeness; paragraph topic-sentence clarity and cohesion with thesis; ideas are clearly stated; supporting evidence is appropriate to chosen topic; addresses the target audience
- Structure: the order around which the paper is organized; degree to which introduction and body develop towards conclusion; overall soundness of structure
- Thematics: creative use of topic (as opposed to simple summary); relevance of paper to the given assignment suggestions; level of engagement of the author(s)
- Grammar and Mechanics: basic elements of language use; clear, effective, correct sentence structures
- Stylistics: word choice, tone, voice

Presentations: (10min) Everyone will be responsible to present one of the weekly assigned readings in order to facilitate class discussion. Although it is not required you can utilize any of the following multi-media formats to aid in your presentations: film/documentary clips, visual slides, PowerPoints, material objects, music, visual art, youtube clips, and current news events that relate to the course readings. As a presenter you may synthesize the main points of the day’s reading and evaluate the author’s main arguments or narrative style, theme, etc. You may also provide historical background, biographical information of the author, or review current literary/historical criticism of the works. Please e-mail or meet with me before your presentation. Remember that your presentation must include questions that you present to the class.

Reflection Essay: (1-2p) This essay should be a well thought out reflection of the course and its major objectives. You should also discuss what you learned and your own intellectual growth after taking this course.
Quizzes: There will be four quizzes given throughout the course and take the form of multiple choice and short answer. These may be conducted on BB under the assessments link and timed.

Documentary/Film Screenings: Throughout the semester we will screen documentaries/films, which will be either screened in class or on BB. All documentaries will be available through video streaming on Blackboard or placed on library reserves.
