Class Policies:
1. Attendance is crucial in this class. Each day, essential information will be dealt with in class discussion and in the instructor’s clarification of information on the readings, daily assignments, and quizzes. If students must be absent, they should check with someone else in the class about activities and information that they have missed. Each student will have 3 free absences; after the 3 absences, each absence will mean points subtracted from the attendance grade. However, if students miss and do not turn in daily assignments, they will have points subtracted on the daily assignment grade.
2. The exercises that are listed on the syllabus must be completed and brought to class on the day that they are due on the syllabus. Each student will mark errors with a different color of pen. If students do not find errors on their exercises, they will write no errors in color on the top of the exercise, along with the date. The day of the test on those exercises, students will turn in all of the exercises at the beginning of the class. Students will only be given credit for exercises that are marked with two colors.
3. Conferences are encouraged. Any time that students have problems with assignments or questions about grades, they are welcome to see me during office hours or by appointment. If students have questions about grades, I request that they wait 24 hours after receiving the grade to discuss the grade with me.
4. Quizzes and midterm can only be made up with medical documentation.
5. Please turn off cell phones, pagers, I-Pods, and radios when entering the classroom. If lap tops are out during class, the student should be working on class work for this class. Please do not check messages or text on electronic devices during class.
6. Students who miss any day of oral presentations will have 5 points for each day missed deducted from their oral presentation grades, and those absences will count as absences on the attendance grade as well.
