London and Its Literature
A Study Abroad Course in London, England
Summer II - 2013
July 20 - August 10
Prof. Mark Bayer

Have you ever wanted to witness one of Shakespeare's plays at the Globe Playhouse? Make your own pilgrimage to Canterbury Cathedral like Chaucer's characters? See the Elgin Marbles that inspired Keats' poetry? Retrace the steps of Charles Dickens and Virginia Woolf around London? This three-week summer course will give you the opportunity to do all this and more.

The course will be open to advanced undergraduate and graduate students. If you are interested in this unique opportunity, there will be an informational meeting discussing the course, logistics, and associated costs Tuesday, October 2 at 5pm in the Craven Room (English Department Main Office, MB 2.314). For more information and a tentative syllabus, contact Mark Bayer (mark.bayer@utsa.edu; MB 2.452; 458-6885).
