The Department of English, Classics, and Philosophy offers several forms of Graduate financial aid. The exact amount and terms may vary; listed below are typical forms of aid.

Graduate Teaching Assistantship I. Graduate teaching assistants who aid a senior faculty member teach one introductory literature course, helping to present the material, lead discussion, etc. ($4,000/year).

Graduate Teaching Assistantship II. Graduate teaching assistants who teach two courses in the freshman writing sequence and participate in a special rhetoric program for graduate teaching assistants. Requires 18 hours graduate credit in ENG at time of appointment, including ENG 5183: Theory and Practice of Teaching Composition ($8,000/year).

Keith Thomas Memorial Fund. $1,000/year

The Alan E. Craven Endowed Scholarship. $2,000/year

Each of these awards is for a single academic year; recipients must be registered for at least six hours of graduate coursework in English each semester. In some circumstances, students who are nonresidents but who hold a competitive academic scholarship of at least $1000 may be allowed to pay Texas resident tuition without regard to the length of time the student has resided in Texas. For additional information about this matter, please contact the English Graduate Office.
